In usum Juventutis. Cura & Studio Joannis Stirling, A. M. 8vo, 1733. Pretium 1s.

A System of Rhetoric in a Method entirely new: Containing all the Tropes and Figures, necessary to illustrate the Classics, both poetical and historical. To render which more generally useful, the Whole is divided into two Parts: In the first of which the Rules are given in English, in the second in Latin Verse; below which are placed proper Examples in each Language, and at the Bottom of the Page are the Terms translated in the one, and their Derivations from the Greek in the other. By John Stirling, M. A. Price 4d.

In the Press, and speedily will be publish'd, in a Method entirely new.

A short System of Grammar, in three Parts; viz. Etymology, Syntax, and Prosody (the above Rhetorical System being the fourth) To which will be added, Cato's Moral Distichs, and Lilly's Pedagogical Admonitions, with the following Improvements; namely, The Prosaic Order of the Verse in the lower Part of the Page: An Alphabetical Vocabulary of all the Words, shewing their Parts of Speech and Signification: The Themes of Verbs, with their Government and Signification. A Table of Scanning, containing all possible Variations of Hexameter and Pentameter Verse; by which every Line of the Author is scanned, the Marginal Letter, opposite to each Line, referring to the same Letter in the Table. Lastly, The Rhetorical Figures are placed at the Bottom of each Passage as they occur.

Also a new Edition of Phædrus's Fables in the same Manner. Both by John Stirling, M. A.

N. B. The Author finding the former Impressions of Cato and Phædrus go readily off, and the Method much approved for its Easiness and Expedition, both by eminent Masters and ingenious Gentlemen, Friends to Youth and Learning, is thereby encouraged to print a second Edition with greater Improvements. If these should be as acceptable to the Publick, as (it is hoped) they will be useful, he will be enabled to pursue his Design of printing more of the Classics in the same Method, and with the like Improvements.
